Fifth Annual

Segundo de Febrero Commemorative Dinner

Kicking off the Treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo Exhibit

One hundred and sixty-three years ago, Mexicanos who lived in the northern part of Mexico or today's American Southwest, became United States citizens upon the signing of the Treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo on Feb. 2, 1848. The signing of this treaty ended the war between the U.S. and Mexico and gave birth to the Mexican-American community in this country. The modern geopolitical boundary between Mexico and the U.S. was established.
